Achieve next-level integrated care

Many behavioral health organizations are on a journey toward integrating primary care services. Technology alone isn't enough—success requires a strategic, aligned approach including:

- Strategic alignment between your organization's clinical and operational leadership
- Common intake, assessment, and care planning processes for clients served by behavioral and primary care components
- Coordinated measures for assessing clinical, operational, and financial performance
- Clarity of role function and responsibilities among your care team
- Improved hand-offs and internal program referrals
- Improved client experience and increased client satisfaction
- Fewer missed appointments and no-shows
- Improved clarity of roles, coordination of care, and provider satisfaction
