

DATA AGGREGATION

Consolidate data from disparate systems for maximum insight, value

Solution description

NextGen® Connected Health Solutions give you the ability to collect, normalize, and store data from multiple clinical systems and provide a single-source of truth across the community. NextGen® Health Data Hub, the core of the NextGen information exchange solution, provides an aggregated data repository and community-wide view of the patient. In addition, our integrated EMPI allows you to manage patient identity—ideal for organizations with multiple health information systems requiring an enterprise master patient index.

What this solution enables

With powerful data collection, normalization, and aggregation tools, NextGen Health Data Hub can empower your community with a single source of truth for local, clinical data.

- Exchange health information securely and connect disparate systems across your patient's entire spectrum of care
- Leverage data-driven clinical decision-support and quality metrics
- Create effective care management processes and drive positive outcomes
- Power outreach to engage patients and produce clinical quality reports
- Save time and money by working in conjunction with your existing EHR, or leveraging NextGen® Enterprise applications
